

Police Museum run - 4th October

By Janine Wagstaff

What a beautiful day we had for this run. First port of call was a meet in Matamata before starting the run to "The Old Forge Kitchen" (on the outskirts of Te Aroha) for morning tea. It was a great turnout. The coffee was great as was the food for those that opted to have brekky as well.

From there approximately 17 cars took to the road again heading to the Police Museum on Piako Road, about a 9km drive.

We were all given directions to get to the museum and there was just one car that didn't read it properly, which was us! After realising we had missed the turnoff we, and those that were following us turned around to catch up with the others who were all waiting patiently (we hoped) and onwards we all went.

We arrived at the Police Museum owned by Lou Forhecz

It was a bit of a squeeze to get all the cars parked but park them we all did.

The owner gave us a great overview on the history of the museum and we were then able to wander around and take it all in. What a step back in time it was for many of us, fantastic!

Certainly brought back some memories.

We thanked Lou for having us and about half an hour or so later we were back on the road heading to the Top Pub in Morrinsville for lunch, making it a lovely end to a great day.
